

all there is

if you happen to feel like a lost soul remind yourself there's no such thing as a lost soul the idea created for manipulation so we would believe the illusion of separation as corny as it may sound I value the idea of us all bound together by nothing but good old love there's nothing below us, there is nothing above course if all that there is

is all that is there it can never not be somewhere my logic conclusion is all is everywhere so if all there is, is everywhere how can you imagine to feel lost somewhere other than here with all of us I guess that demands for all your fuss to evaporate into the idea of the illusion which may in the end be the end of your confusion and see this whole 'lost soul feeling' loosing itself in it's imagined meaning

course if all that there is...

you don't need to believe a word I say but know that I'm not the first to name the things you sure as hell find once you have an inquisitive mind

I want you to believe the words you say knowing you find peace the first time you name the things you sure as hell find
once you have an inquisitive mind

the moral of my immaculate conclusion is my wish for you to work with the illusion and see yourself not separate to me but instead have a glimpse of eternity

If you and me might really just be one there can't be an end that has never begun it is how it is, I can't see how it is any different to this, course if all there is

is all that is there...