

no dignity

I have to admit that lately I gave you too much room gotta say that maybe I even stopped to bloom you're smart and sneaky holding onto your believes I was dumb and sleepy taking part in your grieve no dignity in your negativity loose your appeal when you're no longer real

leave me alone before my patience is blown

I must say that now you look as if you couldn't be happier so I think that now you should know I'm no longer with you your impatience with what I do your trigger and my clue I'm on the stage the curtains rise and I'm free of your disguise your way to live is making me strong shows me where I no longer belong your giving loves guilty advise that I sacrifice

I know deep inside of you you love what you daily do I leave you your way my only crime so please please leave me mine
